

INTRO

this might even be part of "about" page

maybe I could like this to worldometers to have real-life updates

there are 7,743,400,000 people on the planet today... which means 3,840,700,000 people on this Earth are treated as inferior by the L.A.W.

for comparison: that's equal to the population of

US x 11.6

28 countries → EU x 7.5

12 countries → SOUTH AMERICA x 9

for visualizing: msps → [pudding] "Crate beer - so not right now but what city is the microbrew capital of the US?"

that's 3 billion

840 million

729 thousand

192 women

50.4%

49.6%

if it's possible, make the text appear better by letter as if typing

WOMEN, BUSINESS AND THE LAW

WOMEN, BUSINESS AND THE LAW

but what does it mean
for women worldwide?

2009

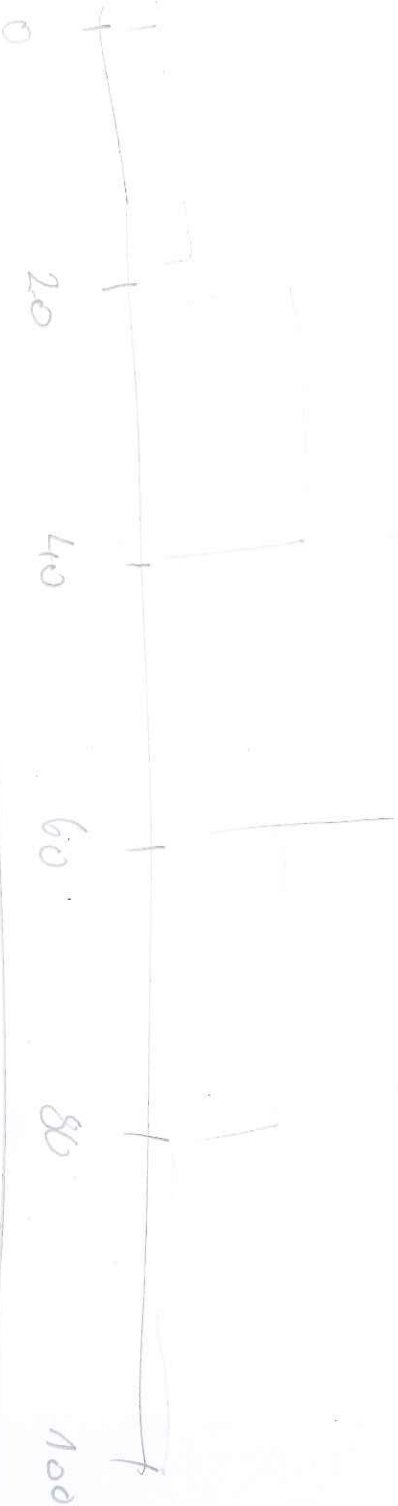

2018

ideally: scrollable feature like in NYTimes & many 'pundit' articles

description

the world average is:

74.7%

the only 6 countries, where LAWS treat men and women as equals

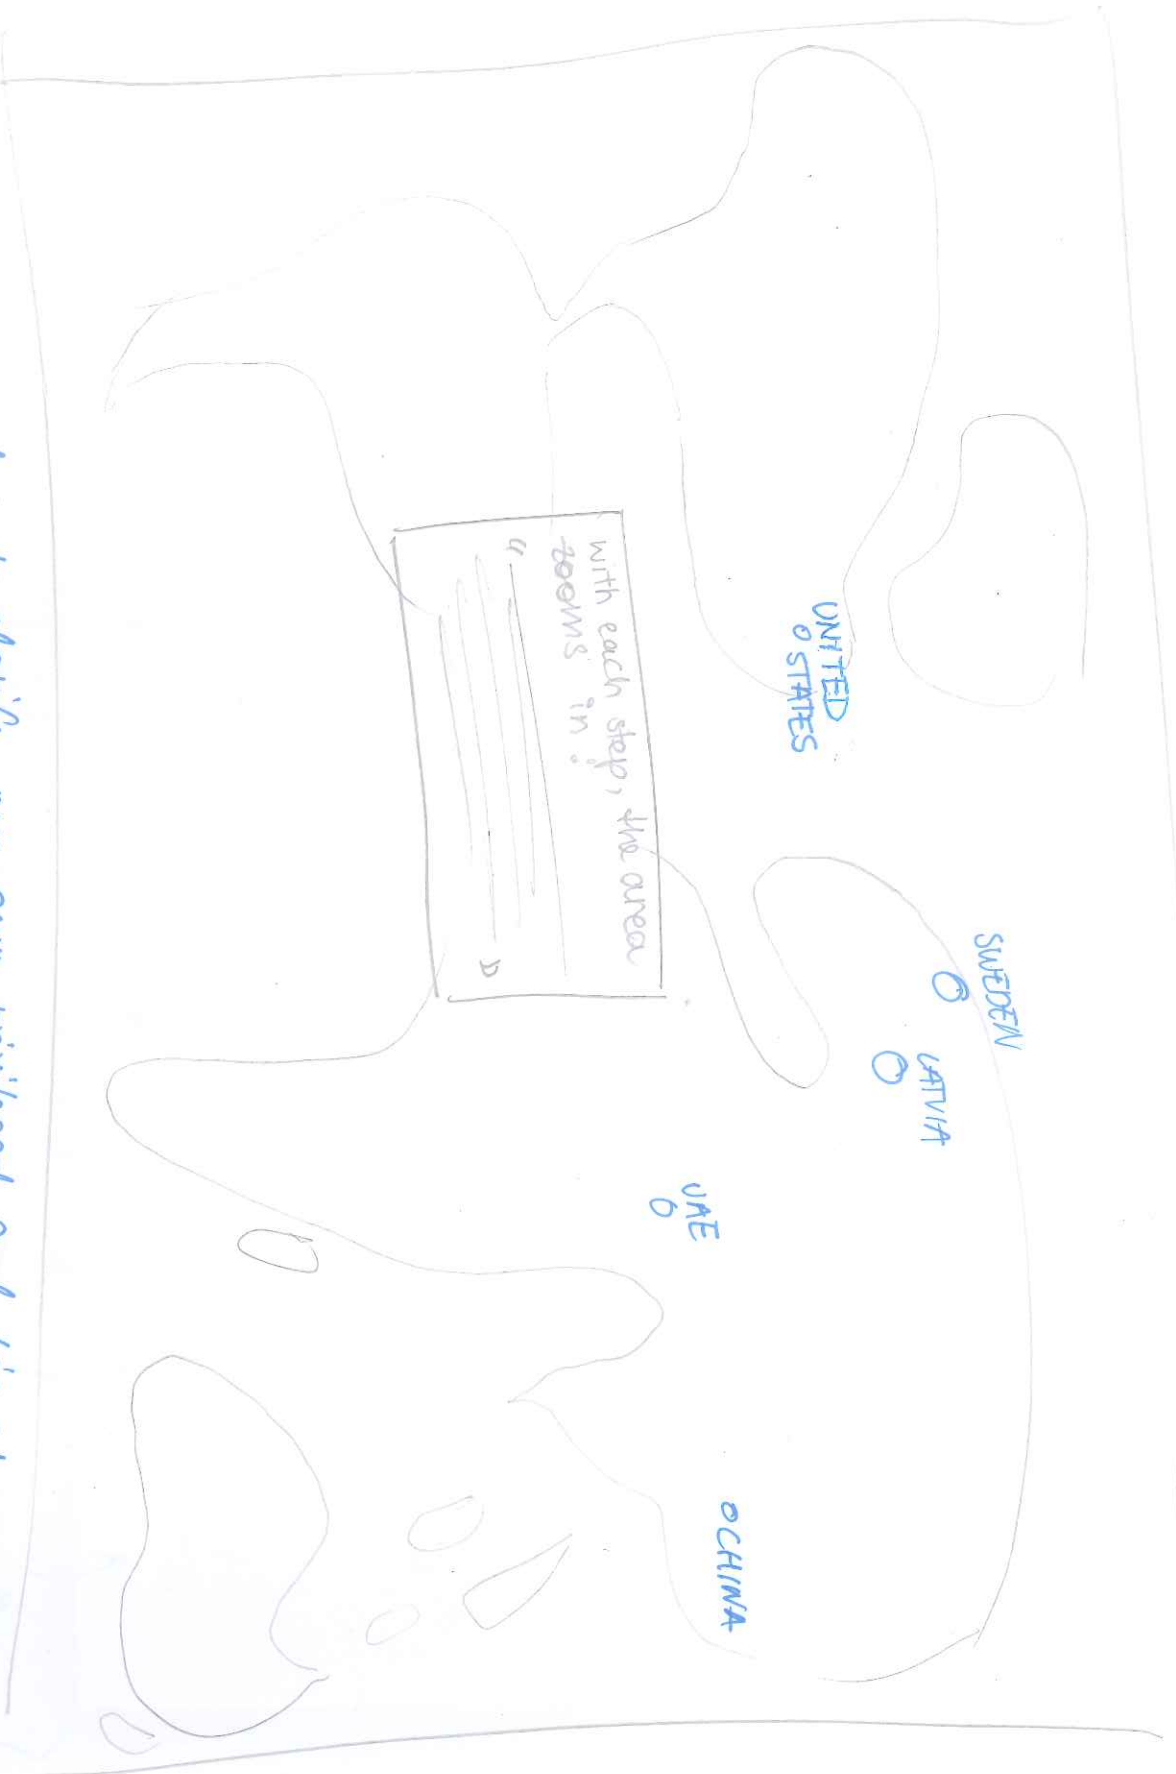

for reference

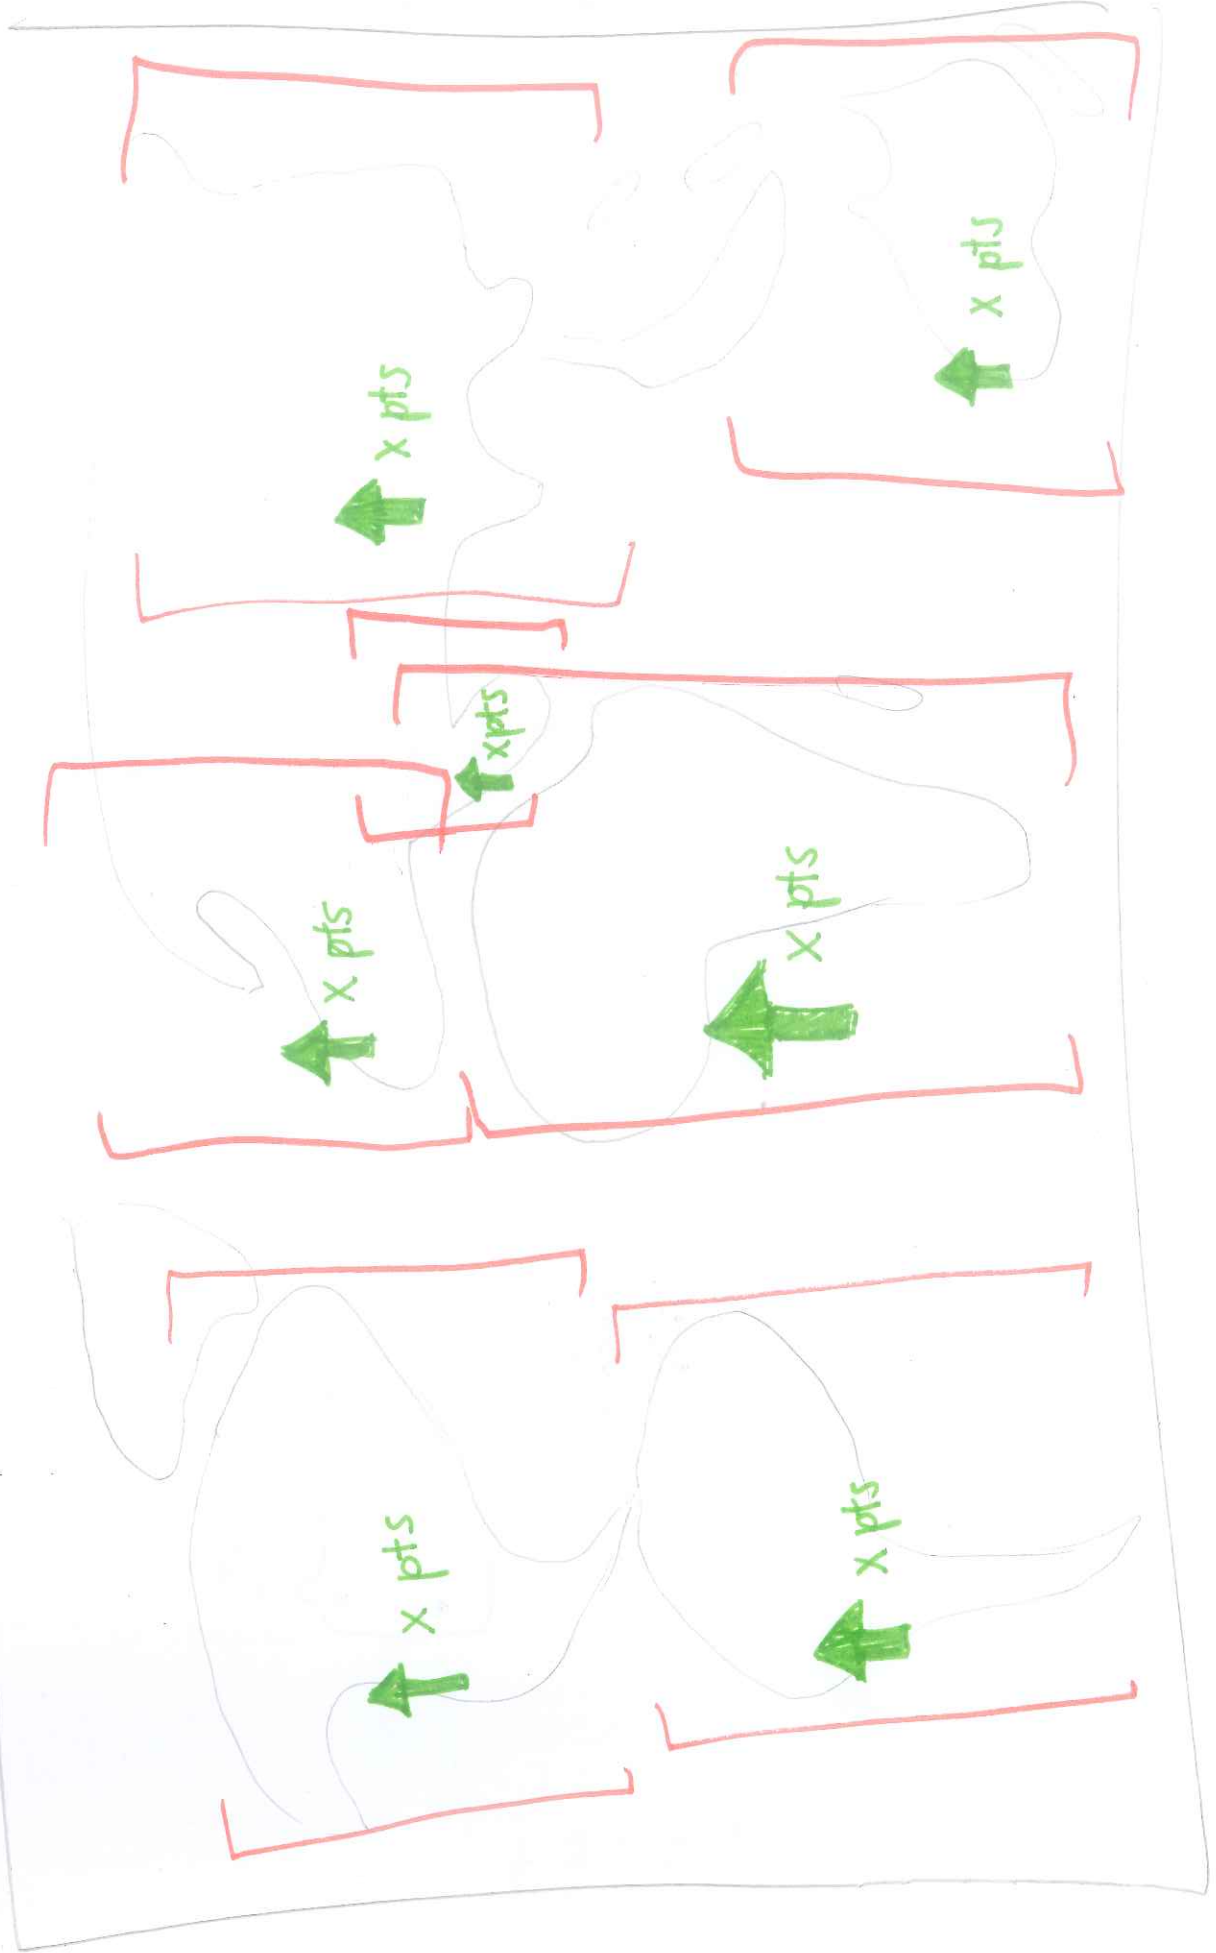

transition page

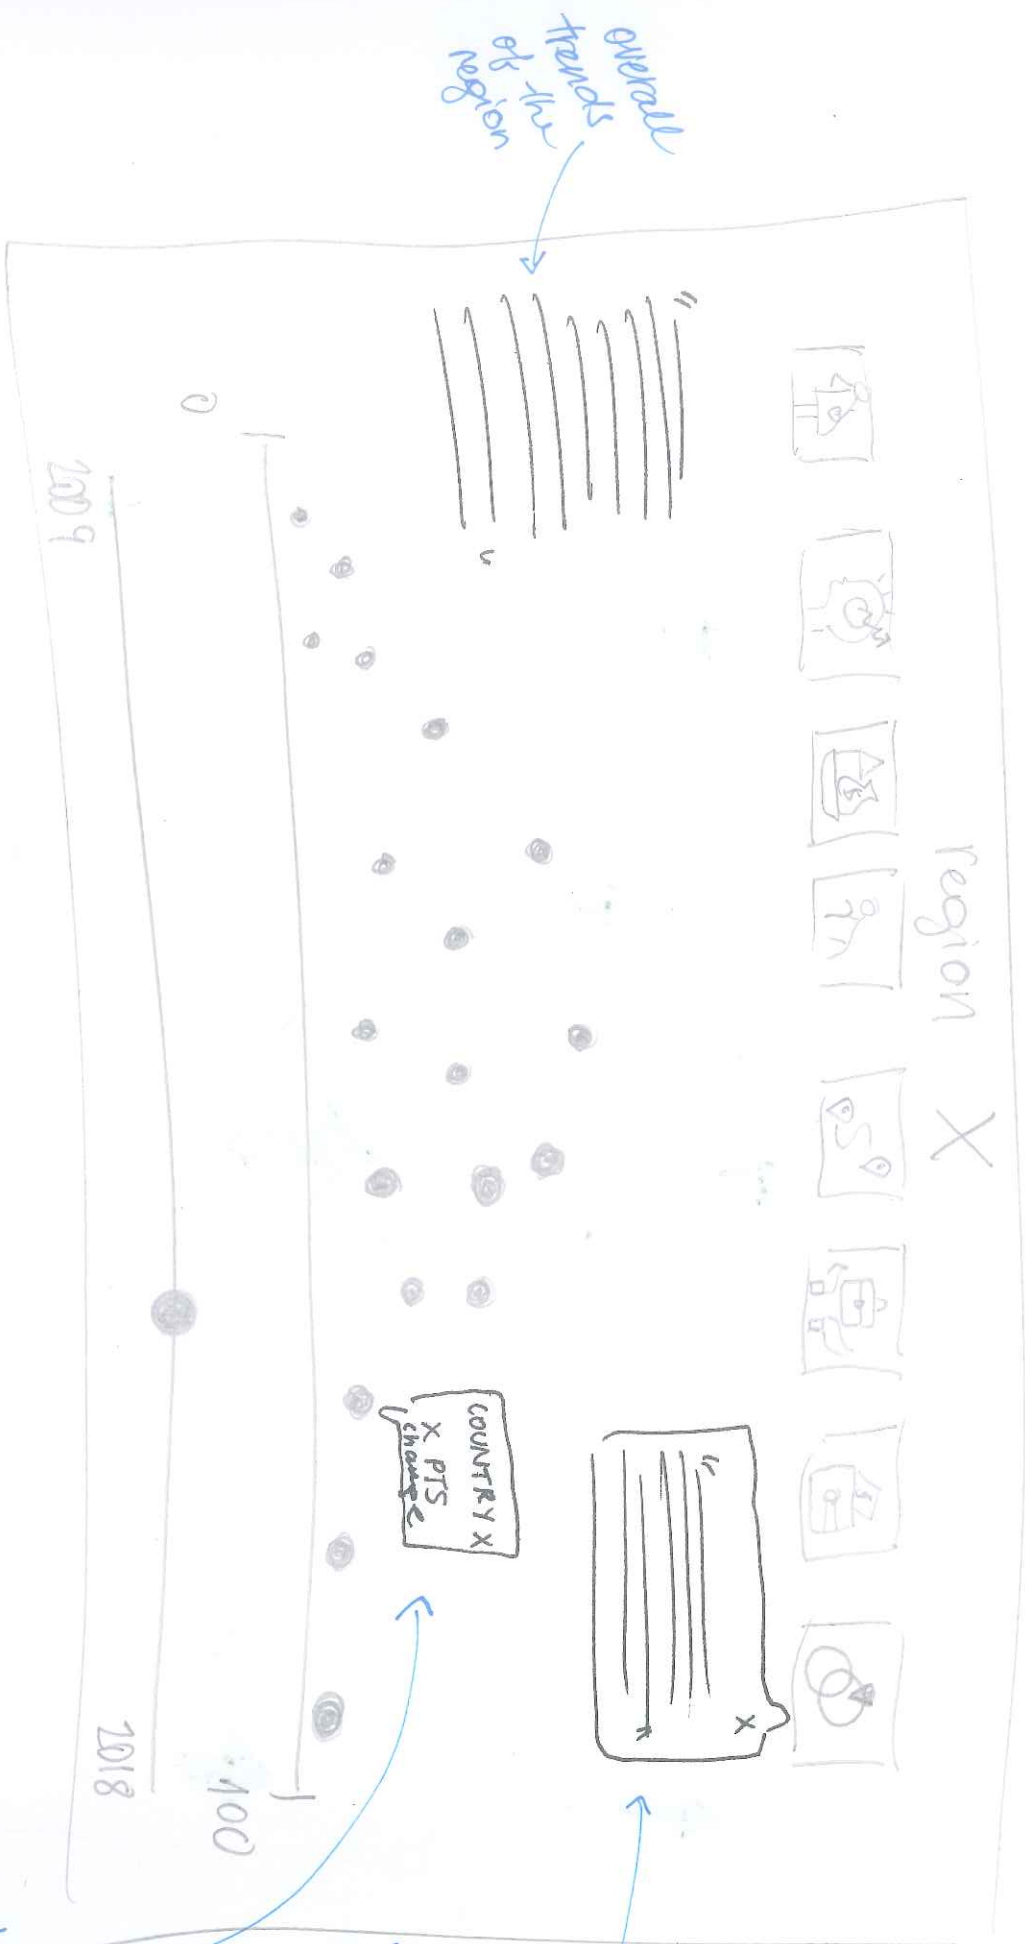

using visualizing Inspo from pudding: Craft beer i develop a short history of how i *left the bubble of gender equality.

! This is a good place where to clarify my own privileged and biased perspective; emphasize different contexts & clarify how different regions develop in different paces and CALL OUT the 2 countries that regressed in the past decade
Uzbekistan
Bahrain

for each region

individual
country:

- name
- income
- pts
- change since 2009
